

The Girl, the Monster, and the Witch's Spell

Author & Illustrator: AC

Once upon a time, there was a naughty little girl who lived in a cottage. The girl has blue eyes and thin long blonde hair. She likes to wear sparkling clothes and play cheeky pranks on other people.

On Christmas Day, the girl opened her presents and she was surprised to find a toy monster that she had never seen before. She thought it was quite cute, then she put the monster toy under her bed and went to sleep.

The next morning, a squeaky sound made her jump out of bed. When she looked under the bed, she saw that her little toy turned into a real monster.

The monster was chewing her socks, and when the girl tried to squeeze him, the monster turned around and said hello with a friendly smile.

Then they played together for the whole day.

Suddenly the monster said: "I want to go on an adventure and see the world outside."

The girl jumped with excitement: "Yes! We will go in the afternoon!"

They went into the forest where they met a wolf.

The wolf asked if he could join them for the adventure, but the girl said: "No! You look too scary."

The monster replied kindly: "Of course you can join, we would be stronger together."

They went through a river where a parrot was drinking water.

The parrot asked if she could join them for the adventure, but the girl said: "No! You are too noisy."

The monster replied kindly: "Of course you can join, we would love your beautiful voice."

Finally, they went past a cave where a mysterious witch appeared.

The girl giggled out loud: "Look, the witch doesn't even have a wand!" The witch went cross, she cast a spell on the monster that turned him back into a toy, and pulled him into her cave.

The girl, the wolf, and the parrot set off to get help, until the parrot brought back a book called Undoing Spells. In the book it said: "The kinder you are to your friends, the less power the witch's spell will have."

The girl thought for a moment and turned to the wolf: "Sorry for saying you are too scary, we need your strength to help the monster."

Then she looked at the parrot: "Sorry for saying you are too noisy, we need you to growl like a bear to distract the witch."

While the witch ran out of the cave, the team sneaked into the cave, rescued the monster and rode on the wolf's back all the way back to the girl's home.

Just as they ran back and shut the door, the spell was broken and the monster turned into a real one.

The friends all said in one voice: "You are the kindest monster in the world, we've missed you!" and they gave him a sweet hug.

The monster smiled: "So do I, it feels great to be home!"
